

CHARITABLE TRUST

Celebrating the past Securing the future

In a pioneering scheme, the SVR is reversing the decline of heritage skills by training a new generation of apprentices.

These young people are learning to maintain and restore rolling stock, permanent way and signalling systems. Quite simply, they are the SVR's long-term future.

While the price of your ticket covers the day-to-day operation of the trains, the truth is that it can't pay for training the Railway's future engineers.

As little as £5 extra from each party of visitors would help cover the cost of the SVR Apprenticeship Scheme.

"Most of the skills we learn here no longer exist in the modern workplace. We're breathing new life into these beautiful heritage vehicles."

Heritage engineering apprentice Max Green
